Please note

Applications after deadline: Applications after the deadline will only be considered if there are still places available. Admission criteria are mainly based on academic achievements and motivation for participating in the program. Participants in the Summer School will not be enrolled as students of the University of Applied Sciences (HTWD).

Liability insurance: Participants are responsible for ensuring their own health, accident and liability insurance as well as personal and property damage.

Cancellation Policy (Participants): Should unforeseen events happen (e.g. travel restrictions due to COVID-19, illness, family reasons), please inform us as soon as possible so that we can accommodate the participants on the waiting list.

Cancellation Policy (MARISS): Should HTWD/MARISS have to cancel a course or excursion for reasons beyond its control, it cannot be held liable.

Costs: The HTWD/MARISS does not cover any costs of the participants, such as travel bookings, visa fees etc.

Disclaimer

The HTW Dresden, the organizers and the teaching staff of the MARISS International Summer School are not liable for damage to personal property or for injuries suffered by the participants during the course, nor for damage caused by the participants to other persons or property.

The participant agrees to the storage and use of personal data for the internal organization of the registration. The protection of personal data during storage is regulated by the Federal Data Protection Act. As part of the organization of the technical excursions, personal data of the participant will be forwarded to the waterworks, which require a registration for a visit. The participant can request the deletion of his/her personal data for the future at any time and without giving reasons.
