DESIGN FOR CHANGE is the largest global movement designed to give children an opportunity to express their own ideas for a better world and put them into action. Children and adults learn through the Design for Change Challenge that “I Can” are the two most powerful words a person can believe. Children who have discovered this are changing their world!

This year, Design for Change reaches 34 countries and over 300,000 schools, inspiring hundreds of thousands of children, their teachers and parents, to celebrate the fact that change is possible and that they can lead that change! The challenge asks students to do four very simple things: Feel, Imagine, Do and Share. Through this simple, 4-step process, children are tackling diverse challenges all over the world, including questioning age-old superstitions in rural communities, creating an inclusive environment for the elderly and the disabled, designing sustainable eco-solutions, solving the problem of heavy school bags and much more!

Children are proving that they have what it takes to be able to ‘design’ a better world.

Ruchi Junnarkar, Global Coordinator for Design for Change, will be in Germany in May to help catalyze DFC in schools in Germany. As part of her current role, Ruchi is responsible for the growth and management of DFC’s global movement along with training teachers and educators from around the world on Design Thinking and the Feel-Imagine-Do-Share process.

In her speakout, Ruchi will be presenting DFC’s work and design process of Feel-Imagine-Do-Share. Drawing on her experience at the Riverside School and Design for Change, she will talk about how the Design Process can be applied to the field of education and why education needs Design.
